American First Credit Union Sponsorship Enables Children to Attend Camp HBIC

Thanks to American First Credit Union's sponsorship, two children are able to attend Camp HBIC (Help for Brain Injured Children) this summer. This is AFCU's second year of sponsorship, having sponsored one child in 2012.

Help for Brain Injured Children, Inc. is a non-profit organization and home of The Clela Harder Developmental School in La Habra, CA, which helps children and young adults with moderate/severe multiple disabilities, including autism. Camp HBIC is held at the school and is a unique inclusion camp that brings together children with and without disabilities in the same fun and exciting learning environment. These children benefit from exposure to their disabled and non-disabled peers.

American First Credit Union CEO and President, Jon Shigematsu, and Associates Jose Jimenez and Jared Kennison recently had the chance to visit the school. "We saw first-hand the wonderful things that HBIC does to help these children live a full life and learn how to work with their disabilities," said Mr. Shigematsu. "We are very pleased to be able to give children who will benefit so much from this special experience the opportunity to attend Camp HBIC."
